Editor:

I was heartened to read the Editorial Board's fair and optimistic commentary entitled "Compromise led to AED-Dells letter of intent." It rightly pointed out what I always thought likely, that all sides would negotiate with integrity.

Too often developers and city officials are demonized by those who assume bad faith when they have little or no evidence of it. That certainly seemed to be the case during the past two years in which the Granite Dells issue has enjoyed local prominence.

Developers' property rights are important, as is honesty on the part of our leaders. As citizens and voters, we should ensure both. The system has worked, and it looks like a win-win is in store.
